BOTTLE TALK FEATURE OF THE MONTH

Most everyone in North Carolina that collects bottles knows John Patterson. Most of you probably think of John as a milk bottle collector. Well, I can assure his interest in N.C. bottles goes far beyond milk bottles. John also collects North Carolina whiskey bottles and has a real passion for Salisbury, N.C. whiskeys. The few bottles featured in this issue will give you some idea of just how nice John's collection is. Maybe later in the year I can talk John into doing a special issue on his whiskey collection. The C.M. Bailey bottles featured on the cover were discovered during the demolition of an old home in his neighborhood. John's C.M. Bailey flask (left) fits in very well with the group.

If you want to know more about John Patterson and what he collects just go to Google and type: Salisbury Post John Patterson. You will be amazed at what you find.

Thanks to John for the support he gives to Bottle Talk.

Two more nice items from John Patterson's collection of Salisbury, N.C. whiskeys. The North Carolina Corn Whiskey bottle is very rare. John says it is the only one like this he has ever seen. It was found in a 1903 home in Cleveland, N.C. It looks really nice standing next to the 1/2 gallon George A. Jackson jug.

This nice center slug plate SALISBURY CARBONATING CO. is one you may never see again. This is a very rare bottle and one of John's favorites.

Thanks to John for sharing these nice items from his personal collection with the readers of Bottle Talk.

Notice to RBC members:

The publishing of the newsletter seems to demand more and more of my time. Part of it is because I can't get around as well as I once could to look for interesting collections and items that might be enjoyable to the readers. When I have several nice photos and support material it cuts my time in half. When is the last time you contributed a photo or article to your RBC newsletter? It takes the same amount of time to send me a photo as it does to publish it on Facebook. There are a few people that provide articles and photos from time to time and I really appreciate their help. Why don't you pitch in and do your part?

SHOW and TELL

Frank Bishop brought this nice little TIP COLA to "Show and Tell". It was quite a conversation piece. The bottle is marked Greenville, NC. The cap is marked Raleigh, NC. The bill head is showing the TIP Corporation, Marion, VA and lists 100 gallons of syrup being sold to Pepsi Cola Bottling Co. in Selma, NC.

The nice MASON'S MIDGET CANNING JAR was shown by Joe Williams. The three parallel bars embossed on the front are what sets this bottle apart from the rest. This unusual midget jar could bring $150.00 or more at auction.

The pint, strap side, KINSTON, NC DISPENSARY flask is from RBC member Lonnie Blizzard's collection.

Pem Woodlief brought this rare porcelain Granville County license tag to the meeting. Even with the rust damage this is a high dollar piece. It may be one of a kind.

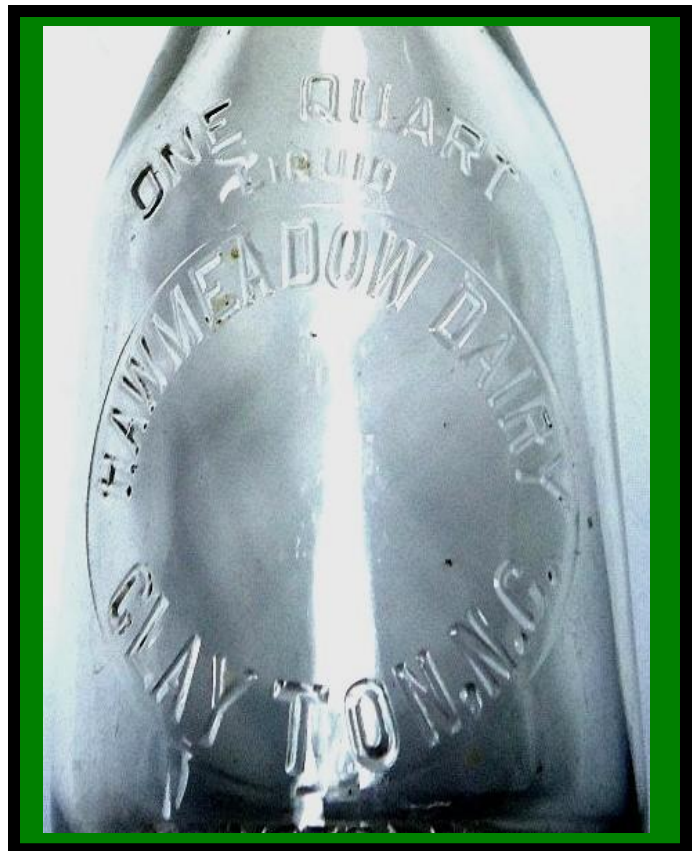

The 50's glue bottle is from Marshall Clements' collection. Tape glue has become obsolete over the years making IBM TAPE MUSILAGE a very collectible item.

RBC welcomed three visitors to our last meeting. Eddie Sr., Eddie Jr. and Tommy Conway are from Youngsville, NC and they collect most anything old. Their main interest centers around N.C. milk bottles and Pepsi items. The 7 OAKS DAIRY bottle is a very nice and highly sought after N.C. milk. They also brought a nice HAWMEADOW DAIRY quart bottle from CLAYTON, NC.

Thanks guys for attending the meeting and bringing something for "Show and Tell". Hopefully you enjoyed it enough that you will decide to become new members of the RALEIGH BOTTLE AND COLLECTIBLES CLUB.

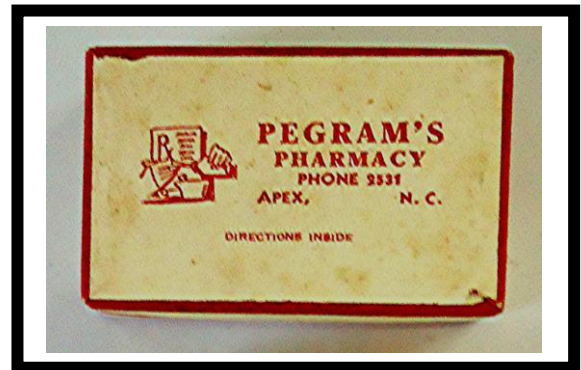

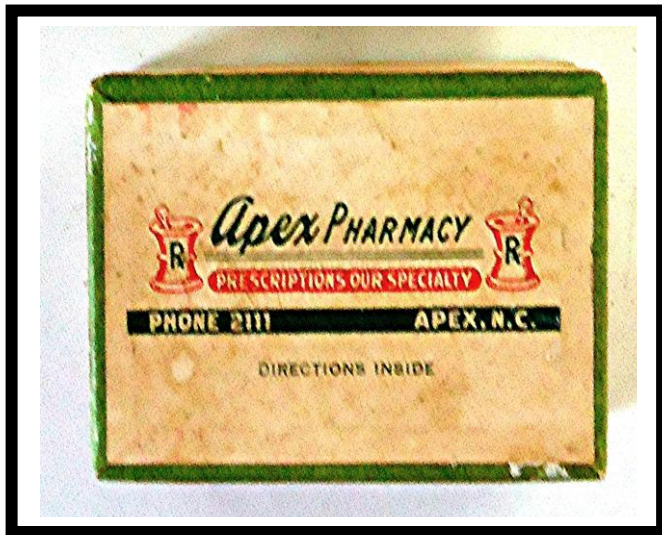

Reader Feedback

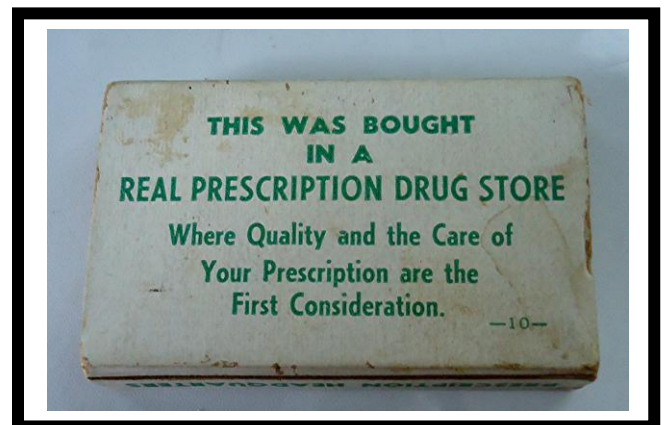

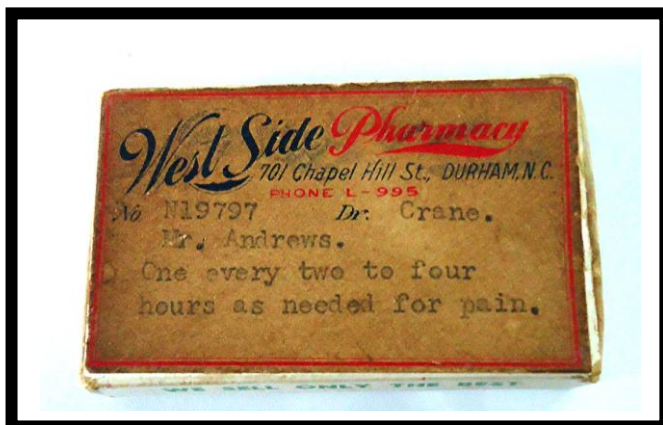

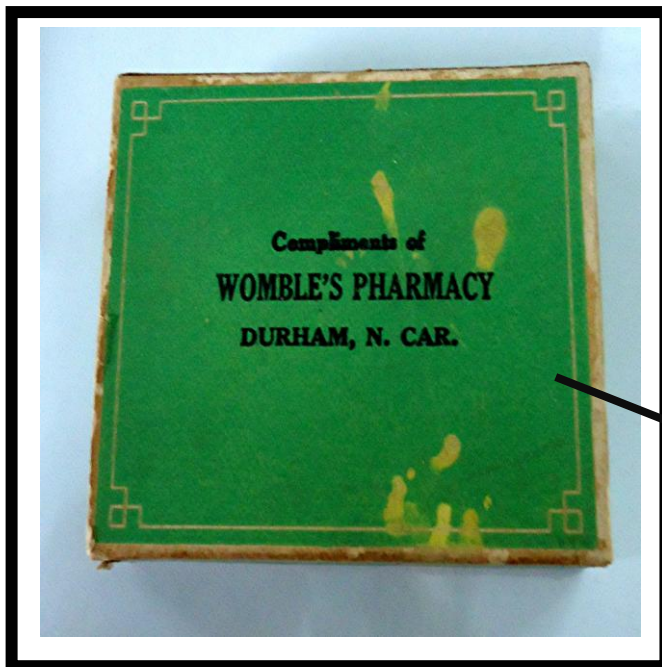

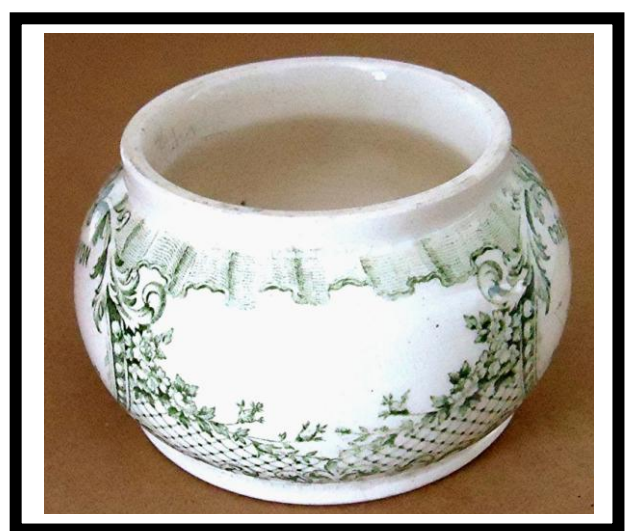

John Patterson found this nice OLD DOMINION CLUB Whiskey bottle and would like to know more about it. If you have any information about this bottle, or the distiller, please contact me and I will put you in touch with John.

N.C. Pharmacy Boxes

Vintage Pharmacy boxes are becoming very hard to find. Over the years the box material and label deteriorated from acid paper reaction, high humidity and insects. The Womble's Pharmacy box is an advertising piece that contained two products sold in the drug store. The Apex, Pegram's and West Side boxes were for prescription pills. Based on the phone numbers these boxes are from the 40's and 50's.

Large styrofoam covered bottles are becoming more valuable each year. They were only made for a short time and the styrofoam is very fragile. The foam covered 64 ounce TRU Ade is pretty rare. I value it at about $50.00.

The nice little CREME de SAVON porcelain jar is one of my favorite pieces. It has a value at about $25.00. I dug the jar from the old Durham, N.C. dump. It was about five feet in the ground and was packed full of red clay. The support of the clay inside probably kept this jar in one piece.

I bought this extremely rare bottle at a yard sale last year. It is a HUCKLEBERRY SPRINGS GINGER ALE from Durham, NC. This is the first and only Huckleberry Springs Ginger Ale bottle I have ever seen or heard about. Long time residents remember trucks with large tanks transporting water from the spring. Water has been hauled from Huckleberry Springs since the early 20's. My guess is one of the local bottling companies bottled this product for a very short time in the late 20's or 30's. If you know anything about this bottle please let me know.

Did You Know?

North Carolina enacted state statutory Prohibition in 1908 with an operative date of January 1, 1909. This law prohibited the sale and manufacture of intoxication liquors. In 1911 the Prohibition was expanded to include near-beer, beerine and similar drinks containing alcohol, cocaine, morphine or other opium derivatives. This new rule included private clubs. The General Assembly passed an act in 1913 making the possession of one gallon of liquor evidence of guilt. In 1915 this was expanded to prohibit the delivery and receipt of more than one quart of liquor in 15 days. In 1917 a bill was passed making the manufacture of liquor a felony with a minimum sentence of 12 months upon conviction. After July 1, 1917 the state became bone dry and liquor advertisements were no longer permitted to circulate through the mail. North Carolina ratified the Prohibition Amendment to the Federal Constitution in January of 1919.

It is interesting that in 1915 the booze continued to flow for personal use and was sold throughout Raleigh by the "blind-tiger" drug stores. It is noted that one Raleigh druggist within a three month period filled 3,990 prescriptions for whiskey, 555 for beer, 26 for gin, 50 for wine and 14 for brandy. Another druggist had received 835 gallon of spirits in a five month period.

More later on the illicit liquor trade during Prohibition and the special circumstances that allowed this liquor trade to exist in North Carolina.
